Goshen Land Trust's Mountain View Property at the head of the Hollenbeck valley affords stunning views of the Berkshires (actually part of the Taconic Range in Massachusetts). Accessed from a parking area off Rte 63, the trail to the overlook is a well maintained, gently sloping woods road. The summit itself is at the top of a steep rock ledge. Birders will appreciate the variety of wetland, open field and forest types traversed on this hike. A second, steeper path another option available for the return, winding through the woods and across streams back to a field below the parking area. Allow an hour to hike up and back on the wood's road, an additional 30 minutes if taking the forest path.
